A still from the movie "Spirited Away"

"Hayao Miyazaki's masterpiece, Spirited Away, is more than animation, it's art in motion. This illustration reimagines the world of Chihiro and Haku with a personal touch, paying homage to a story that continues to stir the imagination of all who enter its enchanted realm."

"Art is the expression of the profoundest thoughts in the simplest way."

My artwork features different mediums as well as techniques of sketching and painting. Most frequently used medium is graphite and charcoal pencils on ivory paper with different techniques like blending, rendering and hatching which are commonly used.

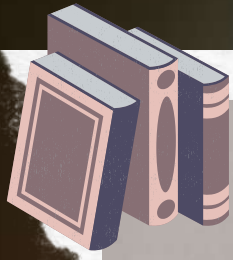

I also enjoy working with other mediums such as oil paints, acrylic colours and colour pencils, both on canvas as well as on paper. The colours bring more fun as well as realism to the paintings.

For my sketches, I draw inspiration from still life and people around me.

My portraits are mostly based on television characters, popstars, sports people and other famous personalities. I use my art to express my moods and dreams.

"In Ink and Eternity"

This sketch captures the timeless essence of William Shakespeare, the legendary playwright and poet whose words still echo. With thoughtful eyes and a composed expression, the artwork pays tribute to the Bard's enduring genius.
